Please select the degree of risk you (and any co-applicants, if applicable) are willing to take with the assets in this account, in light of the purpose(s) you identified above.

- A Conservative. I want to preserve my initial principal in this account, with minimal risk, even if that means this account does not generate significant income or returns and may not keep pace with inflation.
- B Moderately Conservative. I am willing to accept low risk to my initial principal, including low volatility, to seek a modest level of portfolio returns.
- C Moderate. I am willing to accept some risk to my initial principal and tolerate some volatility to seek higher returns, and understand I could lose a portion of the money invested.
- D Moderately Aggressive. I am willing to accept high risk to my initial principal, including high volatility, to seek high returns over time, and understand I could lose a substantial amount of the money invested.
- E Significant Risk. I am willing to accept maximum risk to my initial principal to aggressively seek maximum returns, and understand I could lose most, or all, of the money invested.

Please note: You may change your account features and options at any time, with advance written notice to us.

Borrowing Money to Buy Securities (Buying “On Margin”) – Please Read Carefully

You will have a “cash account,” unless you choose to have a “margin loan account” (customarily known as a “margin account”). To help you decide whether a margin loan account is right for you, please read this information and the Margin Loan Agreement.

In a cash account, you pay for your securities in full at the time of [purchase/settlement (generally three days after purchase)]. In a margin loan account, we may lend you a portion of the purchase price. This is called buying securities “on margin.” For example, when you buy equity securities (such as common stock) on margin, you typically must deposit at least 50% of the purchase price, and we would loan you the balance. You are liable for repaying the borrowed funds and the interest incurred.

If you borrow funds in your margin loan account and the value of your holdings declines significantly, you may be subject to a “margin call.” This means that we can either (1) require you to deposit additional cash or marketable securities to your account immediately, or (2) sell any of the securities in your account to cover any shortfall, without informing you in advance. We will decide which of your securities to sell. Even if we notify you that you have a certain number of days to cover the shortfall, we may still sell your securities before that timeframe expires. Further, we may increase at any time the level of equity that you must maintain in your margin account without triggering a margin call.

We have the right to lend shares held in your margin loan account to others. This should not impede your ability to sell these shares, but may cause you to lose voting rights and the right to preferred tax treatment on certain dividend payments.

[Firms may specify here individual policies on how trades are handled if there are insufficient funds for margin or cash accounts.]

Borrowing funds to buy securities is only appropriate for those investors who can tolerate losing more than the amount of money deposited in the account. To avoid the use of margin, even in a margin loan account, always pay for your purchases in full at the time of purchase.

- No I do not want the ability to borrow funds in my account, which means I will have a cash account.
- Yes I want the ability to borrow funds in my account. I have read the Margin Loan Agreement and understand my rights and obligations under it.

Note: If you do not check any box above, by default you will have a cash account.

[Firms should indicate what type of account will be the default if the customer fails to indicate a choice above.]

Managing Your Cash

Sometimes there is cash in your account that hasn't been invested. For example, you may have just deposited money into your account without giving instructions on how to invest it, or you may have received cash dividends or interest.

Please choose one of the cash management programs listed below. You may instruct us to change your selected cash management program at any time to another, if you meet the eligibility criteria of the new cash management program. If you do not choose one, we will automatically place your uninvested cash into the default cash management program, which will be hold cash or securities in the brokerage account. We will give you advance notice of any change in your choice or of the options generally available to you. We may need your consent for certain changes, but not for others. We reserve the right to terminate, without prior notice, the Money Market Fund sweep program that you select and move your cash balance into an FDIC-insured bank account.
